To be used for the pain of after-birth contractions. This is an amazingly effective formula. The St. John's Wort cleanses the uterus, removing any last tiny pieces of the placenta while lifting the mood and helping the mother avoid postpartum depression. The Yarrow helps to control unnecessary bleeding and the other herbs are for pain relief while, at the same time, assuring that the uterus folds down properly (and stays folded).

If there is any cause for concern (when the placenta is examined) that a small piece might have been left behind, take VIB tincture with ABF and/or apply Angelica essential oil topically to aid in releasing the last bits of the placenta. VIB and Angelica essential oil can also be used if the placenta is slow to release after birth. I like to use all three routinely with every birth. I believe that many problems have been averted since I saw a proportionally low number of retained placentas and pieces of placenta left behind in my former life as an herbal midwife.

<sup>ℒ</sup>Millenia (an essential oil blend from Butterfly Express LLC) applied to the abdomen after birth will help the uterus firm up, controlling and limiting bleeding. Be sure to wait to apply <sup>ℒ</sup>Millenia until after the placenta has been delivered.
